

How did shelter/houses change from the Stone Age to the Iron Age?

	Stone Age		Neolithic	Bronze Age	Iron Age
	Paleolithic	Mesolithic
Pictures:
What were the walls made of?	They were made of rocks or mud.	They would be made of mud or bark.	Small stone and wood poles. They could be made of animal skins.	They used stone for walls.	The walls were made of mud, stone or brick.
What was the roof made of?	They were made of rock or animal skins.	They would be made of mud or bark.	They used animal skins.	They used mud.	The roofs were made of mud, stone or brick.
What was the door made of?	There was no door.	There were no doors.	They used animal skins.	They used mud.	The doors were made of wood, stone or brick.
Other facts:	There is evidence of people living in caves and using animal skins for shelter.	People started to use mud and bark for shelter.	People started to use stone and wood for shelter.	People started to use mud and stone for shelter.	People started to use brick and stone for shelter.

We compared shelters.

Tools and Weapons

	Stone Age	Bronze Age	Iron Age
Tools:
Weapons:
What tools and weapons did they have?	Swords, knives, axes and spears. They also had bows and arrows.	Swords, spears, axes and knives.	Swords, spears, axes and knives.
What were the tools and metals made from?	They used stone, wood, bone and antler.	They used bronze and copper.	They used iron and steel.
Order them from easiest to hardest to make.	1	2	3
Order them for usefulness.	2	3	1

We compared tools and weapons.

We compared clothing.

Would you rather live in the Stone Age, Bronze Age or the Iron Age?

We read the evidence available to find out how we know what was eaten.

We tasted foods that have been around since prehistoric times.

We handled artefacts.

We tried a style of cave painting.

